Top Screenshot: The code editor shows a JavaScript snippet:

try {
  // ...
} catch(function(error) {
  console.log(error);
});
```

 The quiz question is: "What is the output of the code above?". The correct answer is selected: ☒ success, error, Error caught.

Bottom Screenshot: The code editor shows a JavaScript snippet:

try {
  // ...
} catch(function(data) {
  console.log('Error:', data.message);
});
```

 The quiz question is: "What is the output of the code above?". The correct answer is selected: ☒ success, Defeat, error, Error caught, Error: test.
